

Customer Experience Review & Growth Strategy

MarryBrown Swanston St

By : Muhammad Luthfil Hadi Suryadi | Master of Data Science candidate, The University of Melbourne

DISCLAIMER

This is an independent, personal work sample — not affiliated with, endorsed by, or produced for Marrybrown Holdings Sdn Bhd or any of its subsidiaries.

- All data is sourced from publicly available Google Maps reviews as of July 2026.
- Reviewer names have been partially anonymized to protect individual privacy.
- Any competitor names referenced are used solely for market context, not comparative advertising.
- This document is intended for internal review by Marrybrown management only and is not for public distribution.

The Reality

A polarized 2.7★ rating driven largely by easily fixable operational friction points, not fundamental product flaws.

The Fix

Zero-cost, process-driven interventions implemented at the shift level to immediately eliminate the most common complaints.

The Opportunity

An untapped, high-yield demographic—Muslim international students—currently defaulting to competitors due to an awareness gap.

A Polarized Customer Experience

The data reveals an inconsistent operation. When we get it right, we earn 5 stars (Advocates). When we miss, we fail completely (Detractors). The middle ground is exceptionally small.

Overall Rating | 125 Total Reviews

27%

Rate it 5 stars
(Advocates)

43%

Growth Opportunity
(1-star visits)

Voice of the Customer: Topic Synthesis

Where We Win

- ✓ Friendly staff (18 mentions)
- ✓ Spicy Food (8 mentions)
- ✓ Fried Chicken (7 mentions)
- ✓ Nasi Lemak (5 mentions)
- ✓ Welcoming atmosphere (5 mentions)

Where We Lose Trust

- ⚠ Missing items (6 mentions)
- ⚠ Cold food (4 mentions)

“Friendly, welcoming service comes up a lot in the positive reviews... it’s clearly there, just not every time.”

Diagnosing the 1-Star Visits:

3 Core Friction Points

Core Issue	Customer Evidence	Business Impact
1. Freshness	"Mashed potatoes... spoiled, with a rotten smell." (B* K*) "Fries were cold and not fresh at all." (Jy L.,)	Immediate loss of repeat business.
2. Order Accuracy	"Portion was tiny — nothing close to 'large.'" (Jy L.,) "Came without the curry sauce." (Y*n O.,)	High frustration, easily avoidable negative reviews.
3. Service	"Asked them to cut the burger in half and the staff member was so rude." (An R.)	Undermines the 18 positive reviews praising friendly staff.

Operational Quick-Wins: The Fix

Friction Point	Zero-Cost Intervention	Expected Impact
Freshness & Consistency	A simple hot-holding temperature log for sides/gravy, plus a quick taste-check on batter seasoning at shift start, catches most of this before it reaches a customer.	Catches spoiled/cold food before handoff.
Order Accuracy	A 5-second visual check against the receipt before handoff, and standardized scoop sizes across shifts, would resolve the majority of these complaints at near-zero cost.	Resolves majority of portion/missing item complaints at near-zero cost.
Service Consistency	Since friendly service already shows up often... quick shift-start reminders and clear guidance on handling simple customer requests would go a long way.	Turns first-timers into regulars by standardizing the friendly service baseline.

The Blind Spot: Muslim Newcomers in Melbourne

After nearly six months living in Melbourne, I stumbled across the Swanston St store while passing through — I had no idea it was here, and no idea it was halal.

Finding reliable halal food is priority #1 for international Muslim students. Melbourne receives thousands of these students every semester. Right now, Marrybrown is invisible to them.

The Visibility Gap

	Competitors	Marrybrown Swanston St.
Digital Integration	✔ Embedded in curated Halal WhatsApp lists.	Absent from community lists.
Community Presence	✔ Visible sponsors at university iftar events and mushallahs.	Zero presence at high-trust community gatherings.
Search Optimization	✔ High visibility for 'Halal' search on Maps.	Halal certification hidden in digital footprint.

Strategic Takeaway: Competitors are winning the market purely through distribution and awareness, not better food.

Market Penetration Strategy

Let's build a 4.5★ experience.

Ready to discuss how we can implement these changes at Swanston St. from day one.

 luthfillawliet23@gmail.com

 Muhammad luthfil hadi
suryadi